Brookline Together: Solving Our Housing Crisis

On March 29, 1:00-3:30pm, Brookline Housing Advisory Board (HAB) and Brookline Commission for Diversity, Inclusion & Community Relations (CDICR), brings together multiple stakeholders to build a broader constituency advocating for housing affordability: not just subsidized housing, housing for seniors and those with disabilities, but the 'missing middle.'

This first of three Forums (location TBD) will discuss connections and interdependencies between facets of housing affordability: how transportation problems, economic development issues, climate sustainability and racial justice play a major role in our ability to increase housing affordability. A discussion of Brookline's current housing crisis will examine what it means for residents and those who cannot afford to live here, and how conscious policy decisions, such as redlining caused this crisis.

Co-sponsored by a dozen organizations concerned about housing affordability in Brookline, the forums are free and welcome everyone. For additional information please contact Joan Lancourt, jlancourt@comcast.net.
